

Itchy

▶ THE ULTIMATE
INSIDERS' GUIDE
TO LIVING IT UP AND GETTING DOWN IN

LONDON
AUTUMN 2006

HEAD LIKE A KITE

Random Portraits Of The Home Movie

Sushirobo guitarist Dave Einmo (yeah, we don't know who they are either) takes a load of samples from his parents' old Super 8 home movies and turns them into an album. Okay, so it sounds a bit wanky. However, what it actually is, is a trip through the most important soundscape influences of the last 20 years. My Bloody Valentine-esque washes of noise fade in and out of Words of a Friend, Tell Mommy You Want a Sip of Beer is underpinned by a sparsely melodic Mogwai-esque bassline, and the eerie Your Butt Crack Smile has touches of the Godspeed... about it. For once this is an album that's a triumph of style and content.